Senator Montoya attended Regis College in Denver, Colorado, and Georgetown University Law School in Washington, D. C., receiving his LL. B. degree in 1938. He has been engaged in politics since 1936 when he was elected to the New Mexico House of Representatives at the age of 21. He has held various political positions in New Mexico, including a seat in the State Senate and four terms as Lieutenant Governor. Prior to his election to the U. S. Senate, he served four terms as a member of the U. S. House of Representatives. Because of his Spanish background, his long association with New Mexico politics, and his position in the Democratic Party organization of New Mexico, it is believed that he can remain in the Senate as long as he desires.

Senator Montoya has had no previous relationship with the Agency other than routine matters involving constituent requests.

He has, over the years, expressed a great deal of interest in Latin America and has shown particular interest in propaganda in Latin America and the need for reform in Latin American universities.

Montoya has requested that he be briefed on the Agency organization and mission, the trouble areas of Latin America, and a general briefing on Southeast Asia.
